The extracts from J. Wilkes Booth's diary which we published yesterday and which have heretofore been missing, do not appear to add anything to the facts before ascertained regarding the assassination of Mr. Lincoln. Why they have been kept from the public so long in the possession of the Secretary of War, and were not produced at the trial, is unknown, and it is more a mystery since their publication proves that they have no material bearing on the case.

A peculiar state of the assassin's mind, subsequently to the crime, is revealed in these extracts. He was evidently infatuated with the notion that an exalted and historic heroism would attach to the destruction of the President's life; and was filled with chagrin and remorse when he found that the crime was universally detested and its author, as he himself writes, hunted like a dog, condemned by all men and, he feared, by God. To him the act, in prospect, possessed a dramatic character, for which he had prepared himself as for a stage performance, so that his diary corroborates some of the minor details of the newspaper reports of the manner of his procedure in the performance. His references to William Tell and Brutus are to the same purpose proving that he expected to hold a place in history with men with whose characters his profession had made him familiar and whom he had learned to admire.

Except as showing the spirit out of which the crime was developed, and the remorse which the misguided man suffered after its commission this diary presents nothing of public interest or importance. In this view it may present a profitable lesson.

PROHIBITION IN PROVIDENCE. At a meeting of the Board of Aldermen of Providence, on Tuesday evening, a motion to reconsider the vote by which licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors was discussed for sometime and with considerable spirit. When the question came to a vote, the Board was equally divided, 4 to 4. The Mayor, Mr. Doyle, then gave his views of the matter. He said, first, he believed that liquor would be sold under a strict license system than under prohibition; second, the constant violation of a law brings it into contempt; third, the history of the liquor traffic heretofore in Providence and at present in a neighboring State confirms these two points.

Mayor Doyle further said: If I therefore followed my convictions as an individual, I should vote against a reconsideration of the vote of the Board on this license. As the official head of this city I have a large and responsible portion of the citizens imposed upon me by the fact that a refusal to grant licenses will stop the wheels of temperance, and I have a right to raise the question by actual experience. I am aware of the additional fact, which a prohibitory law will impose upon me, and of the fact which I shall be called upon to face, that, however, are incidental to the question which I have been elected by the suffering citizens of Providence, and however disagreeable, they must be met. With these considerations and with a determination to enforce the statute, fairly and firmly, I vote for a reconsideration of the former vote of the board and in favor of a prohibition.

The question was then put, will the Board grant licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors? decided in the negative by the following vote:

Aye—Aldermen Angell, Cooghe, J. Jones and Lester.

Nay—His Honor the Mayor, Aldermen Corry, Hopkins, Snow and Burgess.

CARRYING THE LIQUOR QUESTION INTO POLITICS.—The German Radical Republicans of New York, through their Central Committee, have resolved to notify the Republican members of the State Convention, the Republican State Committee, and all other Republican Committees and Conventions, that they will, at the next fall elections, recommend the support of Republican candidates for State, county or Municipal offices, or for the Legislature, unless the Republican party shall pledge the Republican members of the State Convention and candidates to use their utmost exertions for the repeal of the obnoxious provisions of the Excise Law, either by amendments to the State Constitution or by act of the Legislature.

The Emperor Napoleon witnessed some interesting experiments May 6 at Vincennes with the Chaspot rifle. A regiment was placed 600 yards from the mark. After precisely two minutes firing, it was found that the battalion of 500 men had fired 8000 balls, and 1902 had struck the line of object aimed at. Not a blade of grass was left in front of the mark. The Emperor, it is said, exclaimed, "It is faithful, it is positive massacre." The result of the gun is represented as insignificant.

Chief Justice Chase states that he was not in any way a party to the release of Jefferson Davis on bail. He knew nothing whatever of Judge Underwood's intention, was not consulted by him on the subject, but fully expected that the trial would take place, and that he himself would preside at it. Nor is he now aware of the reasons which led to a different result. Judge Underwood acted in the matter wholly on his own responsibility—so far at least as any persons officially connected with the Government were concerned.

The iceberg from Ball's Bay and the St. Lawrence have made a general descent the reason upon the Atlantic coast, north and eastward, and this is said, accounts in part for our continued cold and stormy weather.

HENRY WARD BEECHER ON SOUTHERN RELIGION.—In his appeal to his congregation, last Sunday, for aid to the South through the Ladies' Aid branch of the Southern Relief Society, Henry Ward Beecher said:—

"There are thousands of persons who have been brought up in influence, and always to give, who, as a result of the misguidance which drove the South to war, to use no harsher term, are actually suffering, dying, starving. Of the saddest condition, of the highest culture, of the most abundant hospitality in times past, their case now is even more pitiable than the adversity of those used to vigorous life, disciplined to suffering, and to whom coarse fare is congenial. Many of them are too proud to declare their need, and there is a sort of hereditary nobility in their reluctance. The bravest soldier often suffers, yet dies under and yet conceals with his manly pride the existence of any wound. Now it is to relieve them that I call upon you this morning. They cannot all be reached—some must die. But many can be saved. They are the brains of the South. They possess the affection and control of its citizens. Any aid we give them in such a way as not to wound their sensibility, or to let them feel we are helping them, will be twice blessed; it will cement their hearts to ours; it will assure them an understanding of our spirit and motives. My sister, Mrs. Snow, has just returned from a two months' journey in Florida and Georgia. I have heard from her lips tales of suffering among the educated and cultivated that would melt your hearts could I relate them as she told them to me. Now, brethren, if you say these were the leaders and chiefs of rebellion, and are suffering the result of their sin, I say unto you that the spirit is anti-Christian and diabolical. The relief of the hungry has nothing to do with politics, and the best reconstruction we can offer is that by which the intelligent leading men of the South can be put on their feet again. The signs are propitious in the South. The right ideas are working. Thanks to wise administration, and the sweet influence of assistance which is duty, not charity, to those that are, from their very suffering, to fold the more our brothers, all is working right, and it is binding on every heart North and South to labor hereafter for those things that work for peace. So soon as this crisis of want is over past, I expect, I confidently expect some Southern man, bolder and wiser than the rest, to rise and say with emphasis: "Thank God for the army of the North that plowed and harrowed so deep, but just deep enough for the seeds of liberty to spring up, and the sources of their prosperity to flow as a river to our soil!"

There were several applicants for an office at the meeting of the County Court in Charlottesville Va., last week, and one of them appealed to the negroes to endorse his loyalty during the war. In response a freedman made a speech, in the course of which he said: It seemed to us of the colored race during the war that all the white folks in these parts were of one way of thinking; all those who could fight the Government having been seen to fight it as hard as they could, and those who could not, all helping the former as much as they could. We should be very glad now to find so suddenly that so many more white gentlemen than we expected, from various parts of the country, were opposed to the war. But while I believe a white man instantly who comes out flat-footed and says he was for the war, when there is no profit nor advantage in his saying so, I still bear another eye that he was against the war, when the advantages are all on the other side, I cannot help suspecting him instantly."

PORTER'S MOSCOW.—A party of strangers from Norfolk recently visited Chincoteague Island some forty miles above Cape Henry, on a gunning and fishing expedition. They found a remarkable state of society existing among the inhabitants. Out of a population of 1,400 only a few could read and write, and the principal means of subsistence are farming and fishing. Great numbers of wild ponies of a small species roam about the woods. These are annually caught and taken to the east coast shore and sold. When broken they make very good farm teams. The inhabitants are exceedingly jealous of strangers, and manifested their aversion in a very decided manner. Their means of communication with the other shore are quite limited, and they have little knowledge of events transpiring outside of their own little domain. They exhibit almost savage ignorance of the world outside of their own territory.

A clergyman in Flint, Mich., during the delivery of a sermon denounced "waterfalls as abominable deformities." The next morning a pretty widow of his congregation had a monstrous head gear upon his door with a card attached stating "this is the latest style."

An Alexandria paper states that "John Gibson, a colored man of Washington, D. C. who held four of the large stores on the Potomac this season, has cleared, above the expenses of his operations, upwards of twenty thousand dollars."

It is a fact of significance that in North Carolina there are 148 free schools for freedmen, and only four for whites. Another fact is that in South Carolina the North last year spent $80,000 for schools, while the freedmen furnished by the state was less than $16,000.

A New York correspondent in a Louisville paper says "the steamers from New Orleans, Charleston and Savannah, within the past fortnight, have actually been bringing back many thousands of dollars worth of dry goods and other merchandise which were sold to the merchants and citizens last autumn on six months' credit, the merchants being utterly unable to raise even a part of the money to pay for them."

A New York merchant engaged in a small business in that city advised, on Thursday last, for a clerk—application to be made by letter. By noon of the day on which his advertisement appeared he had received eighty applications for the situation, and before the next day had passed the number had reached one hundred and nine teen.

There was a man in South Kingston about twenty years ago, a perfect nuisance, and nobody knew how to get rid of him. One day he was feeling sore, and he saw the Sheriff coming with a paper, and he asked what it was. Now if he had told him it was a writ, what would he have cared? But he told him it was a writ of habere corpus and the man dropped his head and ran, and has not been heard of since.

A recent meeting of citizens of Carroll Parish, Louisiana, declared their purpose to be to yield obedience to the Military bill, and to aid Gen. Sheridan, as far as was in their power, in the performance of his duties. They also declared that they are free from all parties, and that in selecting their political associations hereafter they shall be governed more by what men or parties may do for them than by the promises they may make.

A late letter from the exhibition says: "Paris has an additional attraction this week in the arrival of an Egyptian representative from Mexico. They are very tall and very black, dressed in white, natives of the south of Egypt, near Abyssinia, and went to Mexico to serve in the yellow fever region. They have lost over a hundred of their number, and after resting a while in Paris and visiting the exhibition, will return to the banks of the Nile."
